

The National Council for the Social Studies is proud to present its first ever Career Fair at the 2025 NCSS Annual Conference!

Join us in Washington, DC, for an exciting opportunity to connect with top talent and leaders in social studies education. The NCSS Career Fair will take place during the 2025 NCSS Annual Conference, December 5–7, 2025, at the Walter E. Washington Convention Center. Open exclusively to registered conference attendees, this event will bring together educators and professionals at all stages of their careers who are passionate about advancing the field of social studies.

About the Event

This inaugural Career Fair highlights the rich diversity of pathways in social studies education, including:

Civics • History • Geography • Economics • Sociology • Anthropology • Psychology • Political Science • Global Studies • Ethnic Studies • Education Policy • Curriculum & Instruction • Educational Technology • Museum & Public History Education • Nonprofit & Advocacy Work

Who Will You Meet?

Attendees at the NCSS Career Fair include early career educators, experienced classroom teachers, school and district leaders, curriculum specialists, and education advocates. You may also meet a smaller number of graduate students and preservice teachers preparing to enter the profession. Whether they're looking for a new classroom role, leadership opportunity, or continuing education path, these professionals are actively engaged in shaping the future of social studies.

Why Participate?

This is the perfect time to recruit top tier candidates for graduate programs, certifications, and advanced study—especially those seeking to deepen their practice or step into leadership roles. It's also an ideal venue to connect with seasoned educators and administrators who are exploring new directions in their careers, including roles in higher education, curriculum design, professional development, public history, and beyond.
